

Project idea :

Flaschenpost

= a message in a bottle which is thrown into the water so that someone will find and read it

The Danube crosses ten countries over its 2850 kilometres - more than any other river in the world.

It has witnessed war, displacement, trade and cultural exchange. Inspired by the Danube, the Donaupost project sees translations as bridges across language and national borders. It collects literary texts from the Danube region - and sets them afloat

Donaupost - Translation in a bottle
